Biography

Kristopher is a problem solver with a focused practice in insurance law, professional liability, and personal injury. Handling cases involving motor vehicle accidents, slip and falls, commercial liability, and coverage disputes, he defends a wide range of people and organizations, including lawyers, restaurants, property owners, and winter contractors.

Kristopher's civil litigation practice is fulfilling and extensive. His primary area of focus is insurance law, featuring a wide ambit of professional liability, property, and casualty files. His professional liability files relate to defending malpractice claims against lawyers. This necessarily keeps him exposed to many areas of law, which he finds highly engaging.

Experience

Referencing over a decade of experience, Kristopher has represented clients on a wide verity of complex matters stretching across commercial property disputes, malpractice claims, personal injuries, and more for both jury and non-jury trials.

Outside of the institutional client setting, Kristopher has experience in estate, commercial and property litigation. He has also helped people advance claims relating to motor vehicle accidents, assaults, drug overdoses, and slip and falls.
